Cum priuilegio ad imprimendum solum.

VVilliam Raſtell ſeriant at law, to the gentill readers. 1557.

HEre haue ye gentill readers, a colleccion of all the ſtatutes of England (from the begynning of Magna Carta vnto this yere of our lord God. 1557.) which were before this yere imprinted, and whiche be now in force and of effect.

All the printed ſtatutes expired or repelled, or concernyng priuate parſons, or ſome priuate places, I haue left out of this worke: ſauing that of theym I haue made (in their apte tytles as I thinke) a briefe remembrance.

The reſidue of all the ſtatutes imprinted, haue I put in this worke (as I ſuppoſe in their apt tytles) word for worde as they be in the great ſtatutes: onely leauing out, aſwell certayne ſuperfluous wordes, as alſo the moſt parte of the preambles: for that I feared, that if I ſhould haue putte in all the preambles, thys booke would haue growen ſo bygge and ſo thicke, that it wold not haue ben cõteined in this volume: Neuertheles I haue (I truſt) put in thoſe preambles, without whiche the body of the ſtatutes cannot be well perceiued.

But yet truſt not, that all the ſtatutes that I haue put at large in this booke, do ſtande in force: for percaſe ſome of them be repelled by other ſtatutes made after, by ſpecial or general wordes, whiche for lacke of leaſure I could not throughly conſider.

I haue noted in the margent of euery ſtatute certein wordes: and that for three cauſes. The furſt, for that that many of the ſtatutes bee long and conteyne many ſeuerall matters, of which percaſe ye would many times gladly ſhortly finde oute ſome one (without tediouſnes or ſpendyng of the time in reading ouer the hole ſtatute) therfore by peruſing the wordes in the margent, ye may quickly conceiue, what matters be in that ſtatute: wherby ye may redily finde out, the matter that ye would reade of in that ſtatute,

The ſecond cauſe is, that the woordes in the margent well conſidered, ſhall ſtande you in as good ſtede, as ſhould a ſpeciall kalender.

The third cauſe is, becauſe that many ſtatutes contain diuers matters, that neceſſarily were to be put in diuers ſeuerall titles apt for thoſe ſeueral matters, and ſo ſhold diuers matters aptly be put in this boke twiſe or thriſe, or parcaſe in mo places in their diuers apt titles, were it not that then this boke woulde haue ben to bygge, therfore the woordes in the margent, do ſhortly ſhewe you thoſe ſeuerall matters apt for other titles. And in their apt titles haue I made onely ſhort notes of relacions or refermentes, to bring you to that place in other titles, where the matter that ye ſeke for, is at large expreſſed,

But loke not that I haue put in all the notes of relacions or refermentes, that might haue ben gathered vpon the ſtatutes: for my time wold not ſerue me, to peruſe this boke ſo diligẽtly.

Now for that percaſe my ſelf or the printer, hath miſtaken diuers nombers in the notes of relacions or refermentes, therfore when I referre you to ſeke in a nother title, if you finde not your matter that ye would haue, in the number that I ſende you vnto, than ſeke in ſome other ſtatute in that title, and there ſhal ye finde the matter that ye ſeke for.

Note that the wordes in the ſmall letter within the parentiſes ( ) be not the wordes of the ſtatute, but my wordes planted in there, for the better vnderſtanding of the ſtatute.

I haue put euery ſtatute in the tong that it was firſt written in

in. For thoſe that were firſt written in latin or in frenche, dare I not preſume to tranſlate into Engliſh, for feare of miſſe interpretacion. For many wordes and termes be there in diuers ſtatutes, both in latin and in frenche, whiche be very hard to tranſlate aptly into Engliſh.

And although I haue put the ſtatutes here at large, yet wyll I aduiſe (euery ſuche of you, as ſhall haue any matter of importance cõcerning any ſtatut in this boke) not to truſt al together to this boke: but reade you ouer diligently the acte with the preamble therof, in the great boke of ſtatutes, out of which I toke this. This aduiſe I geue you for two cauſes. The tone, for that that reading the preamble with the ſtatute, it ſhall many times geue you much light for the true vnderſtanding of the ſtatute: where if ye reade the ſtatute in this boke without the preamble the vnderſtanding of the ſtatute may be to you oft times confuſed. The tother cauſe is, for that, that perhaps diuers faultes be eſcaped in this worke, ſome for lack of diligence of the printer, and ſome by my default, for lack of leyſure to conſider and aduiſedly to peruſe and ouerſee this worke, after that I had finiſhed it.
